

Frontend Web Developer

Tunetap Music

Tunetap makes more music by letting fans crowdfund concerts so artists can focus on the art rather than the business. Artists will be able to easily set up and fund live events, without having to risk their own money guaranteeing minimums. We also look at fan engagement to help artists and venues predict demand and automatically plan and schedule events. Real music happens at live events, and we believe the industry will be moving there. Come build the future of music.

The Frontend web developer implements the face of our web platform. Our site is built using the latest HTML5 and CSS3 features, and uses a significant amount of Javascript (jQuery) and AJAX. The Frontend web developer will work closely with our designers to build something beautiful that will delight our visitors. There is the opportunity for promotion to CTO.

Responsibilities

- Develop and maintain user-facing aspects of site
- Keep track of metrics and tweak/improve site as needed to increase those metrics
- Ensure consistency of experience for users and as much uptime as possible
- Recruit developer talent, as needed
- Develop and maintain internal tools for team operations and business functions

Requirements

- Comfortable with modern web technologies, including HTML5, CSS3, and Javascript
- A drive to create great user experiences and an eye for detail
- Internship or experience designing and building intuitive UIs with an emphasis on UX
- Drive and ability to learn, explore, and use new technologies
- Familiarity with git (Github) and coding in a team environment

Desirables

- Background in Computer Science or Information Science
- Experience in Rails
- Ability to use available data to make decisions, or to gather more data to make decisions
- Ability to understand and develop user metrics and analytics

At the moment, this position is unpaid. There is the potential, but not the promise, of pay and/or non-salary incentives, including equity or commission, depending on the performance of our team. In addition, this role is on a temporary basis at the discretion of the employer and the employee.

Come build something amazing. Send an email to thetap@tunetapmusic.com and tell us about yourself. Attach or link your resume, portfolio, or anything else that might be relevant. Let us know if someone referred you to this position. We'll be in touch!