

Chief Technology Officer

Tunetap Music

Tunetap makes more music by letting fans crowdfund concerts so artists can focus on the art rather than the business. Artists will be able to easily set up and fund live events, without having to risk their own money guaranteeing minimums. We also look at fan engagement to help artists and venues predict demand and automatically plan and schedule events. Real music happens at live events, and we believe the industry will be moving there. Come build the future of music.

The Chief Technology Officer is a fusion of technical ability and leadership prowess. The CTO will lead a team to develop, test, and maintain our web and mobile platforms. The CTO must be able to make product (front-end) and technical (back-end) decisions to best suit our users' technical capability and the needs of our business.

Responsibilities

- Design and shape product vision alongside CEO
- Establish and enforce timelines and budgets along with founders
- Lead developers and designers, and work alongside them, to build and test product
- Ensure consistency of experience for users and as much uptime as possible
- Recruit developer and designer talent, as needed
- Develop and maintain internal tools for team operations and business functions

Requirements

- Fluent in modern web technologies, including HTML5, CSS3, and Javascript
- Experience with Rails, native iOS, Android, Windows, or OS X
- Drive and ability to learn, explore, and use new technologies
- Experience building machine learning algorithms
- Familiarity with git (Github) and coding in a team environment
- A drive to create great user experiences and an eye for detail
- Ability to use available data to make decisions, or to gather more data to make decisions

Desirables

- Strong background in Computer Science or Information Science
- Internship or experience designing and building intuitive UIs with an emphasis on UX
- Ability to understand and develop user metrics and analytics
- Experience designing and building data visualization for metrics and audio

At the moment, this position is unpaid. There is the potential, but not the promise, of pay and/or non-salary incentives, including equity or commission, depending on the performance of our team. In addition, this role is on a temporary basis at the discretion of the employer and the employee.

Come build something amazing. Send an email to thetap@tunetapmusic.com and tell us about yourself. Attach or link your resume, portfolio, or anything else that might be relevant. Let us know if someone referred you to this position. We'll be in touch!